

Wall Street Is Scene of Bomb Wreckage

BODIES AND BATTERED WALLS SHOW EXTENT OF DISASTER

These bodies, laid in a row along the side of the Morgan bank building and the pockmarks on the marble walls show graphically the extent of the damage wrought by the explosion in Wall-st. Many of the bodies were either burned or cut beyond recognition by flames and bits of iron from the explosion.

Dispatches state that persons hundreds of feet away from the scene of the explosion were scared by flames which accompanied the blast.

Bodies of some of explosion victims waiting to be hauled away. Damaged wall of Morgan building at right shows how missiles in bomb wrought havoc.

Curious crowd examining auto wrecked by bomb explosion. Officials, immediately after the terrible explosion before the J. P. Morgan & Co. bank in Wall St., work on the theory that the explosion might have been caused by an auto colliding with another machine loaded with nitro-glycerine. The presence of two wrecked cars at the scene was the basis of that theory. This was discredited when it was pointed out that a load of explosives would not be passing legitimately through the heart of the city.

$500,000 DRIVE OPENS NEXT WEEK

Building & Loan Boosters to Make Intensive Canvass of City.

With plans to solicit every individual of the city, the greatest organized campaign ever conducted in Janesville will open next Wednesday night to raise $500,000 for the Janesville Building and Loan association with the purpose of providing funds to finance private home building. One hundred thousand dollars of this amount will be asked in paid-up stock; $400,000 in time-alienated shares.

Wednesday night's meeting will take the form of a salesmanship class to be held at the city hall, to be attended by 500 selected canvassers. H. H. Galliarneau, chairman of the campaign, will explain in detail the purpose of the building and loan, bring out methods that should be used in approaching the prospective subscriber; and dwell upon the value of the building and loan association to the subscriber from his own financial benefits and its value to the city in making it possible to build more homes on easy financial terms.

To Cover Each Block.

The canvassers, who have been selected from the lists of members of the Chamber of Commerce, will solicit the blocks in which they reside. While there are approximately 600 blocks in the city, every one will be covered thoroughly before the campaign closes. Actual canvassing will start Thursday evening and be continued on each evening thereafter until the goal is reached. Daily reports of progress will be made by each subscriber to Chamber of Commerce. Campaign offices will be opened at the Chamber of Commerce, to aid the workers, specially printed pamphlets explaining exact plan on which the subscriber's money will be used. They will be left by the canvasser in each home visited.

The purpose of calling upon the people in their homes is stated as giving the salesmen a better opportunity to explain the matter in detail more completely at the leisure of the prospective subscriber.

$500 Expense Fund.

A fund of $500 has been subscribed by the business men to carry on the campaign, which will be highly systematized for speed and efficiency.

A general report on the progress of the campaign will be made at the noonday luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce, Monday, Sept. 27. The campaign is to be conducted jointly by the Building and Loan, the Real Estate board and the Chamber of Commerce.

H. S. Haggart has been appointed treasurer.

100 ENJOY ANNUAL TEACHERS' RECEPTION

A spirit of comradeship dominated the annual reception for teachers of the public schools of the city Friday evening, attended also by members of the board of education and their wives. More than 100 mingled in the novel schemes for getting acquainted quickly, the circle handshaking being directed by Miss Abbie Atwood.

The party was divided into four groups, and each put on a stunt. The first was a race of the "rooking horse brigade," won by Mr. Candy, a new member of the high school faculty. A tuncful orchestra with nasal tones predominating, accompanied the race, adding much to the zest of the contest. Two charades were presented by E. J. Haumerson, president of the board of education, Supt. Frank O. Holt and F. C. Grant, members of the board. Another group won much applause with the dramatization of "Three Billy Goats Gruff."

Perhaps the most novel stunt was put on by the group which represented the Metropolitan Opera company. Dr. Fred Suderland, being presented as Caruso, Miss Skinner, high school teacher, as Madame Schumann-Heink.

J. M. Dottans, head of the vocational school, acted as master of ceremonies heralding each event with a gusto of clanging bells.

"Jolly La Miller" was a popular game of the evening which also served as a mixer. Short speeches by way of welcome and response were given by Prin. G. A. Bassford.

According to Lieut. Robert G. Howie, Camp Grant intelligence bureau, Franklin declared that he did not learn of his companion's death until the following day. He said that after the accident he saw Martin sitting on the ground. After Martin was brought to Janesville in an automobile, Franklin returned to camp and went to bed.

PIGEONS WILL START FLIGHT FROM JANESVILLE

Interesting facts in connection with the part U. S. Signal Corps played in the carrying of mail recently in connection with an announcement that some army "hero pigeons" would be exhibited in St. Louis, Sept. 25-27, at the finish of the world's biggest pigeon race in which 5,000 "homers," released in pairs from 2,500 cities and towns within a 500-mile radius of Missouri's metropolis, are to compete.

Because they believed the pigeon race, featuring the convention of some 8,000 Rexal druggists, would do much for what suddenly changed from a sport to an important war item in 1917-18, Signal Corps officers decided to send "President Wilson," used by the Tank Corps and officially commended by the First Corps Signal Officer, "The Mocker," and "Spike," as well as other noted war pigeons to the St. Louis race.

Each carrier was given on Nov. 5, through rain and fog, and with his leg shot off, reached his left with an important message. "The Mocker" was killed by a bullet on Sept. 12, on the Beaumont front, reached the rear with a message giving the location of advancing top batteries. The information sent by the carrier pigeons to silence the enemy guns in 20 minutes. "The Mocker's" head was a mass of clotting blood, and his body was a mass of blood. It touched its destination. "Spike," unharmed, carried 52 war messages.

In addition to showing the birds, the Army plans to aid the race by releasing many of the 5,000 entrants from its various recruiting stations during the training period. The birds, which are carriers of messages, are all bred specially for this event—are daily taken in autos from the recruiting stations and are gradually increasing distances and released for flight home. The loft, 35 in number, are the largest in the world. They can house 4,000 birds.

During the war the pigeon section of the Signal Corps had 8 officers and 14 enlisted men in the section is now in progress.

There will be a flight from Janesville with a pair of pigeons released from the pen at the Rexal store here, Smith's drug store. These homers will be released from Janesville on the morning of Sept. 25, Sept. 26, the flight to St. Louis. A representative of the Rexal company will be in Janesville to look after the flight.

30,000 Pieces of Mail Handled Here Daily; Postal Force Now 43

When more than 30,000 pieces of mail are handled every day by the Janesville postoffice it is small wonder that more letters are not delayed.

From the time a letter is dropped in the green metal box on the corner to the time it reaches its destination there are a dozen stops on its journey.

Take first a letter addressed to someone in the city. The carrier on his regular route picks up the mail, usually between 11 and 12 in the morning and 3 to 4:30 in the afternoon. (There are, of course, other mail collections.)

When the carriers bring the mail to the post office, they empty it on a long table. Here a battery of clerks faces it; that is, turn it so all the stamps are in the upper right hand corner.

Cancelled at Fast Rate From the facing table the mail is slid to the canceling machine, which automatically device handles about 500 letters per minute.

The next step in the letter's journey is the sectioning. At the sectioning case two men are employed constantly sorting the outgoing mail into three classes according to the city, state or train.

Large cities like Chicago and Milwaukee have their own bag but where mail is going to some western state, all the mail addressed to that one state is placed in a single pouch.

Dividing City Mail After the mail is sectioned it is bagged and tied. But the city mail has yet to be sorted. Several clerks take the Janesville mail and route it. Each carrier has his section into which the mail for his route is thrown. The individual carrier then takes the mail for his route and arranges it according to delivery.

For mail going out of the city there are two ways in which it is sent. Many of the trains do not carry mail cars, but in such cases the mail is sent by express, that is when there is no sorting to be done. The express agent merely throws off the pouch at the station.

Parcel Business Big A parcel post truck and two clerks are employed the whole day delivering packages.

In the local post office besides J. J. Cunningham, postmaster, John Homing, assistant, are W. F. Yahn, superintendent of mails and clerks and carriers. There are 13 city carriers, nine rural carriers, two parcel post clerks, and 16 office clerks.

Preparation for the fall and winter activities in the boy's department of the Y. M. C. A. is being made by installing one of the pool tables besides clearing up in general. Carpenters were hired to build the stationery bench in one corner of the room and one of the corner billiard tables is being made into a pool table and will be covered with new felt. The room will be in better condition than before when activities begin.

REBEKAHS OBSERVE 69TH ANNIVERSARY

Celebrating the sixty-ninth anniversary of the Rebekah lodge in this country, Janesville Rebekah lodge No. 171 presented a program Thursday evening in West Side hall before 65 members and friends. Charter members of the local lodge were present guests. They were, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. William Parish, Mesdames Mary Coleman, Nevada Conroy, and Minnie Swift.

James A. Fathers gave an address on the founding of the Rebekah degree. George Davey also gave a short talk telling how he heard of the Rebekah degree and how he joined the lodge in 1890. Mr. Colman wrote the Rebekah degree and through his influence it was adopted September 20, 1891.

Other numbers on the program were: piano solo, Vivian Lovviss; recitation, Dorothy Barker; violin solo, Jessie Yher; dance, Charlotte Gaffrey; song, Louise and Menieria Kline; piano solo, Helena Jorgis; Mrs. Cora Dickinson, past state president of the Rebekah assembly, made a few remarks. IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN BOYS' SECTION

Preparation for the fall and winter activities in the boy's department of the Y. M. C. A. is being made by installing one of the pool tables besides clearing up in general. Carpenters were hired to build the stationery bench in one corner of the room and one of the corner billiard tables is being made into a pool table and will be covered with new felt. The room will be in better condition than before when activities begin.

Recent market events unmistakably indicate that confidence is replacing uncertainty and the outlook grows increasingly brighter for active and upturning markets. Our market letters for weeks have directed attention to this change and have dwelt insistently upon the wisdom of comparing inherent values with market quotations. This matter was further discussed in our issue of September 10, which will be mailed upon request.

HARDING 58, COX 5, ON BALLOT HERE

If straw votes tell anything Cox will have no chance in Janesville. The results of the first day's straw ballot at the Smith drug store show that 92 per cent of the voters are Harding supporters. Harding polled 40 of the men's votes and 18 of the women's, while Cox got but 3 from the men and 2 from the women.

The straw vote is being conducted all over the country by the Rexal stores. Each day every store sends in its totals to state headquarters, and the state headquarters forward the returns to the national office.

3,894 PUPILS IN RURAL SCHOOLSCounty School Census Shows
6,628 of School Age—
Antisdel's Report.

Inspection of the annual report of the county schools of Rock county sent to State Superintendent C. P. Cary by Supt. O. D. Antisdel, this week, shows that there were 6,628 children of school age from 4 to 20 years, this past school year in the rural districts of the county, which is an increase of 347 children over last year's total. Of this total 3,894 were enrolled in district, state graded and high schools which are classified according to the number of children from 16 to 20 children; 31 had from 21 to 25 children; 33 had from 26 to 30 children; none had more than 30 pupils.

While there were more children enrolled this year than last the average attendance each day was less, due to bad roads and illness. Because of the "flu" the schools were closed during the epidemic and thus the attendance percentage was 1-1/2 percent. The average attendance this year over last was 100 less.

One hundred and sixteen pupils attended school every day this year, 125 Rural Teachers.

Although there were 164 teachers in the county directly under the supervision of Supt. Antisdel, which made a salary total of $140,008.55. Last year's total for salaries was $110,923.70 which in round numbers makes an increase of $29,000 over last year. The list next year will show an even greater increase as the salaries have been raised more than ever before.

Total expenditures for the school year are $207,339.19 against receipts of $350,364.17 obtained from state and county school apportionments, district taxes, special state aid, tuition, etc. The balance on hand is $52,525.98.

Other interesting facts brought out by the report are: 233 children were graduated from eight schools and prepared for high schools; 27 women in the county were school officers.

ROCK TEACHERS PAY
$1,321 INTO PENSIONS

Rock county rural and village schools this year contributed $1,321 to the teachers' pension fund of Wisconsin according to the annual pension report sent out from County Supt. O. D. Antisdel's office to the state department at Madison. Each month a certain percent of the teachers' salary is withheld by the district school clerk. The percent to be withheld is determined by the number of years that the teacher has taught, one per cent of the month's salary being withheld each month if the teacher has taught 10 years or less and two per cent if she has taught for more than 10 years. A teacher has to teach through 75 years before she can obtain a pension. Those who give up the profession may get a refund to a certain percent of the money paid into the fund, but application must be made to the pension department within six months after the teacher withdraws from the profession.

PUMPKINS APPEAR ON MARKET; LITTLE CHANGE IN PRICES

Pumpkins, just a few of the early ones, with their promise of pie hereafter, the approach of Halloween and Thanksgiving, appeared in the local markets today.

Cauliflower, egg plant, beans, pumpkin, turnips, rutabagas, sweet potatoes, and home-grown onions have been seasonable within the past few days. Squash is just beginning to come on the market and by next week this vegetable will be very plentiful, say local grocers.

Also pumpkins, turnips, rutabagas will be at the height of their season by that time.

"There is no time of the year like right now for vegetables," said one dealer. "Greater variety is to be had and the vegetables are at their best."

Tomatoes, Cucumbers Cheaper.
Cucumbers and beets which were already on the market last week are about the same in price, selling at an average of eight cents a bunch. The season for sweet corn, which is still selling at last week's price, 20 cents for a dozen ears, is waning. The corn is not of as good a quality as last week. The price of celery still remains 10 cents a bunch. Cucumbers and tomatoes are cheaper, the former selling at 5 cents each and the latter, which are now at their best, at $1.50 a bushel.

No cucumbers for pickling have been received in the local stores as yet, but it is expected that they will appear in the market here by Monday. Dill pickles sell for one cent each.

Sweet potatoes, which are just beginning to be seasonable, sell at 14 cents a pound, while squash are selling at 10 cents each, and cauliflower and egg plant at 20 to 30 cents each. Red and green peppers, selling at three for 10 cents, are now to be had in abundance.

Pleasant fruit season wanted. Peaches, pears, white and blue grapes, apples, plums, cantaloupe and sugar melons are still in season. Each season will be at its best next week, said one local grocer. The price is still $4.50 a bushel. Pears which are now at their best are selling at 35 cents a pound, and the blue ones at 55 cents a basket. The price of apples has gone down, a pound selling at from 5 to 11 cents.

the democratic nominee for president was named by convention in which "idealists had very little influence."

"Yet," he added, "after receiving a baptism of idealism at the White House, he attempted for a time the role of an idealist. He was to be the apostle of 'Great and solemn referendum.'"

But the success has not been marked. Soon the methods of ward politics prevailed. To that eminent valuator of logical expression, a master of logical digression, as he has beheld his expression, correct style, always dignified, as he has beheld his expression, resorting to coarser and coarser methods, wilder and wilder charges, the referendum must for him become solemn and more solemn."

The democratic administration for the last eight years was termed by Gov. Coolidge a "chapter of accidents" and a "mirage of false hopes and false security." (The hopes and false security, but the mirage for a reality, but through support of republican candidates and principles, he asserted

POINT FOR THE DOG
Do animals think? asks a scientist. Well, a dog turns around three or four times before lying down to go to sleep, while a man without giving the matter any thought lies down, goes to sleep and then turns over several times, waking himself up each time.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

IN PARIS
Monday, September 13.—Leaving for Paris in the morning. Too tired to write much in my diary this evening. Saw and said to Cecil this morning. He seems utterly jumpy and excited, too, about the trip.

Must turn in and sleep now.

Wednesday evening.—And Paris smiling and glowing up at me from below. Yes, it's true, we are actually here in the city of lovely nonsense at last. And what a city! Words fail me.

That trip up from Dieppe yesterday afternoon was too exquisite for description, but I held my breath for sheer delight most of the way. And when the first roads of Paris came into view, and the spires and domes and the pale saffron and rose evening sky first caught my eyes and heart, then I knew just what a lucky girl I was to be seeing so much beauty, so very much beauty.

Mother and all of us were equally enchanted by our first glimpse of the City of Love, and as the train swept on, and right into the very heart of it all, I felt something like water fill my eyes for joy. I was in Paris, the city of my dreams, at last. And as we got off the train, and became a part of it all, the pale evening mists and the soft lights of the city seemed to open its arms and embrace us in a warm welcome, which is just what I have been expecting. As we walked down the boulevard, and a peek into at least one of the many fascinating cafes that I had always read about. So I had my way, and we stopped in at the Cafe Cardinal, on the Boulevard des Capucines, and had a bite, where we are now safely settled and all well. Cecil and her Jeffrey are never to be seen—at least not for a while, for I cannot blame them a bit, for I would want my lover all to myself.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-seven years old, married eight years, and have two children. Now I am in deep trouble. I have been in divorce proceedings, but that was about three years ago, but I gave my husband and took him back on his promise to reform.

As it was all in vain and proved worse than ever, I again started a suit. But my husband begged me and says he is willing to do anything in the world for me just to forgive and forget.

I am a nervous wreck and under a doctor's care at present. At times I think to unite and again I don't as I could never forgive him. I know if I went back I could not stand it any longer, for it is serious and a thing I cannot mention. The life and peace in my heart and they cannot be forgotten.

My husband said he loved me dearly. He showed me a heart of gold, but he has an awful temper and is unreasoning. I can't say I love him, but still like him.

Do you think I should forgive him (not forget, as I could not) for the sake of my two sweet children, and take the burden upon me which will keep me in poor health and nervous? I am a Catholic and do not believe in divorce. Please advise me in such a condition is necessary before I sacrifice my life for one man and leave my minor children behind which need me and my care.

I believe that divorce is justifiable in many cases. Since you believe that, I do not believe you should be going with the young man. Wait until you are a year or two older before you go with young man. In the meantime study and enjoy your girl friends.

"JAZZARINE" IS THE SHIMMER

New York, Sept. 18.—The "Jazzarine" is the name of one of the latest creations in the clothing trade for men. Alfred L. Ornes, New York designer, is the creator. The coat and the trousers at the name. A high waist and striped effect in the trousers, a long center vent in the back and short lapels, well rounded out, are among some of the effects. The rest is accomplished by sewing the buttons a little over an inch apart. The trousers are made to match. It was said there also will be a "Jazzarine" overcoat.

NEW FALL SPORTS TOGS FROM PARIS

By ELOISE

Here is a typical French sports outfit. It shows how the Paris sports clothes are leaning toward the mannish type. This costume, which was seen recently at the races, shows a black velvet jacket a black velvet hat and an accordion pleated skirt. The jacket is made on straight lines with a box effect and has four pockets and a high collar. The hat is a plain chin chin sailor banded in grosgrain ribbon.

The skirt is of brilliantly striped silk with the stripes running horizontally. These skirts are very popular just now in Paris and are worn with velvet coats in red, black, green or brown shades. The skirts may be of wool or silk.

Here two-toned shoes and light colored hose are worn. These are also very popular in Paris, but have not found much favor over here as yet. Note how all-day has extra good as far as to carry a cane to complete her masculine attire. It may be said in favor of the Parisians; however, that they reserve three affectionate wear them to business or in the afternoon or evening hours, as so many of our American girls do when they pick up a new fad.

TESTED RECIPES

Shepherd's Pie—Heat leftover lamb in thick gravy. Put in deep dish and cover with thick layer of seasoned mashed potato. Bake until delicately browned, over high flame.

Trained Chops With Herb Garnish—Mince fine the green tops of the scallions, one-half bunch of parsley, six onions, two green peppers, but in the outside leaves of the lettuce. Place one-half cup of the shortening in the frying pan and when smoking hot add the chops and cover closely. Now brown the chops quickly in the frying pan, lift to a sauce pan and add one cup of water and two tomatoes cut in bits. Cover and simmer slowly for fifteen minutes. Then lift to small pieces of toast. Cover with herbs and then pour the gravy over all and dust with paprika.

TOMATO RECIPES

Chiffa Sauce—Nine large ripe tomatoes, two onions, one green pepper, one-half cup vinegar, one cup sugar, one tablespoon salt, one teaspoon each of allspice, cinnamon cloves and mustard.

Chop onions in green pepper, add to the sauce and mix well. Add vinegar, salt and spices and boil five minutes. Seal in glass jars with paraffin.

Sliced Tomato-Sweet Pickle—One peck tomatoes, six onions, one quart vinegar, four pounds brown sugar, one-half cup salt, one-half cup mustard and one-half cup allspice. Put vinegar, sugar and spices on to boil together. When boiling pour in the tomatoes and cook until they are tender. To prepare tomatoes and onions, slice, sprinkle with salt and let stand over night in an earthen dish. Then remove the water and top to aid in removing juice. In the morning drain, seal in water to which some sugar has been added and can as usual.

Tomato Catsup—Put two quarts of ripe tomato pulp, one finely chopped onion, one-half cup brown sugar and three tablespoons vinegar in a large preserving kettle. Boil until thick; then push through a strainer, covering with a cloth. Return to the kettle and add two tablespoons ground mustard, one teaspoon each of allspice and cinnamon, one teaspoon ground cloves, one teaspoon cayenne and one-half cup vinegar. Boil for a half hour and pour into bottles. The flavoring of catsup depends very largely on individual taste; more or less of the ingredients given may be used. Seal bottles with paraffin.

The Blue Moon

A TALE OF THE FLATWOODS

By DAVID ANDERSON

(Copyright by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

It was so very lonesome in the village with the men all hunting that desperado, that I thought I'd walk out and spend the afternoon with you, and talk over with you about very charming plans I had formed. You have what I believe to be a wonderful voice. While, to my great regret, you have never sung for me, as I have used to do, and forth through the woods in my business of looking up timber options, I have sometimes heard your strong, clear, very charming voice. Now, I am rich, with no one to spend my money on. What better could I do with it than stroll with me, you shall have the best training the world affords."

He put one foot on the door step, his face becoming—if such a face can be called that. The Pearlhunter stiffened in his place behind the curtain. The girl never changed her face's breath in the narrow opening between the cheek of the door and the jamb. Her cold silence was apparently too much even for the bold man that faced her.

"Aren't you going to invite me in?" "My father is away this afternoon. I can't invite you. The first word she had spoken—a word cold and hard enough; but the brazen intruder seemed to take encouragement from it.

"Then permit me to invite myself." He advanced a step, laid his hand to the door, pushed it open, and jam widened not a hair. The passions of a Prussian noble were behind his face; but his thin veneer of politeness. He put his hat back on, but still kept his hand on the door.

"I might choose to come in." "The girl made no answer; neither did she suffer the door to yield. The last vestige of the smile left the man's face.

"I might demand to come in!" something close kin to a snarl slipped into his voice. He stepped the cabin for the notorious desperado, the Red Mask, the murderer of Louis Solomon.

"The Red Mask is not in this cabin." "The answer came slowly, and there was a peculiar emphasis upon the word 'in,' devoid of conscious. To the listener behind the curtains, it was as if she had said: "Not in the cabin, just in front of it."

The pressure on the door increased. The Pearlhunter saw the girl brace her body against it. The door began to give a tiny rattle at first—an inch—two inches. He could stand it no longer. He was in the very act of sweeping the curtains aside when the girl's right hand, the one he had seen behind the door, dropped to her side. Her hand went into the folds of her dress. When it came out it held the handle of a revolver. She cocked the weapon and leaped back. The door flew open. The man on the step sprang upon the floor by clutching the door jamb. When he regained his balance he was going into the main room looking six-gun. At first flush he actually thought it was a joke.

"You wouldn't shoot a man?" His voice had lost its jaunty assurance. "No," came the cold, crisp answer down the steady barrel, "but I'd shoot a snake."

"There was no chance of misunderstanding her." "Damn it if I don't believe, you would."

"You know how to find out." He knew. He slowly raised his hands. The expression in his eyes might have meant any number of things, first of all, that he bowed to necessity; second, that he would come again. Astounded, mortified, baffled—that, most of all, he did not know. He solved his pride with that second thought. He would come again. The girl sensed something of what smoldered in the hold-eyes that a good woman could hardly meet without dishonor. But there were plans afoot—and she trusted them.

"Listen! I'll give you time to get out of sight, if you walk fast. If you look back, or if you are in sight when I think the time is up, I'll shoot at you. He studied the eyes back of the revolver. What he saw startled him around, his hand still up, and started him back down the path. The farther he went the faster he went. In less time than she had thought, he had passed the turn and disappeared.

She closed the door, laid the revolver on the table beside the sewing basket, crossed the room to the sofa. The Pearlhunter had come out from behind the curtains, admiration running riot in his eyes.

"I wish I knew some way to tell you," he said, "how proud I am to know a girl like you. I don't know a man on this coast who could have done it. And him the Red Mask! Before you I feel like a—jailor!"

She looked up at him, tried to smile, the smile was a failure. Her lips quivered; her eyes fell. To the Pearlhunter's amazement, she dropped down on the sofa and burst into tears. He stood shifting from one foot to the other, puzzled and helpless. It was beyond him. He sat down beside her, reached forth, he took her hand and laid it upon her hair.

"Why—don't cry! It's—all over now!" He frowned in an effort to think of something else to say. But all he could think of was: "Don't cry, and that didn't seem to do any good. He was thinking some very uncomplimentary things about his clumsiness and awkward self, when she looked up. The man started. He was laughing. A nervous little laugh right through the tears. The laugh astonished him more than the tears, but it was an immense relief. He just the same, it silly for me to carry on like this! And over nothing!"

"Nothing!" "Well, hardly anything." "And you weren't afraid?" "Not with—you here."

The half-hesitating statement pleased the man—pleased him immensely.

"And you're not afraid now?" "Only that they might find you. Why should I?" "Then I must follow him."

He rose from the sofa. That he had none—it was tramped to rags in the dust and dirt of the village under the wide reaching limbs of the oak—but he began hitching together the strips and tatters of his blouse.

The girl sprang up and faced him. "Why? Why? you can hardly stand."

"We must find out whether he goes to the villages or down to Fallon Rock. Everything depends on knowing that."

He made a step toward the door. She put her hand on his arm. "I'll go."

"Why not? I know the woods, and they're safer for me than you just now."

She was at the door of the kitchen before he could stop her. He reached her arm as she raised the latch.

"It's your place to stay right here and gain strength for your big plan tonight. Why, it's only a little ten-minute run—and I know every bush and tree in the place."

"This plan! Everything depended on it—on his being able to carry it through. He could not move till the time came, and that would be when the dark came. It would ruin everything to be seen too soon. And he must know which way the man went. Much depended on whether he fed his horse now, or went on to the village and came back after night to feed him. The Pearlhunter hesitated, wavering between a very keen and unspooled chivalry and a very insistent expediency.

"If I should catch you!"

She laughed merrily.

"Not even you could catch me in the woods."

She flung open the door. He stretched forth his arm.

"No, no! I can't!"

But she was gone.

CHAPTER XII.

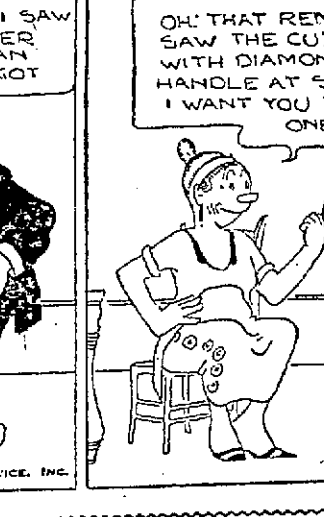

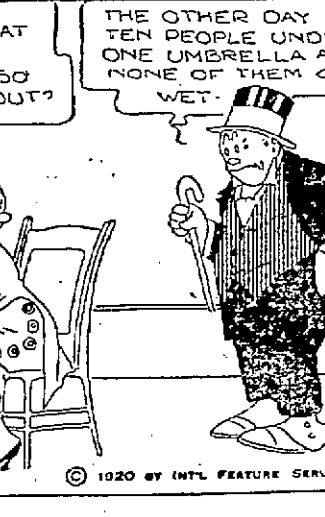

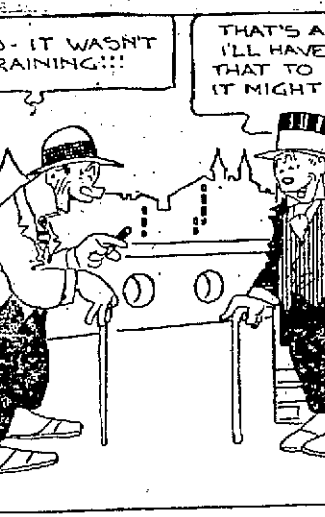

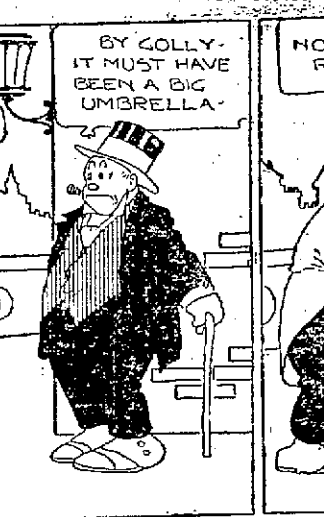

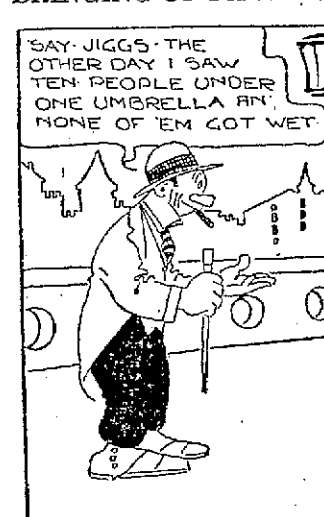

Box Twenty-Three.

The Pearlhunter stood in the kitchen door, feeling no little disgraced, and watched the little form of the girl dart in among the bushes that lined the cliff where it looped east, enclosing the little pocket of level woods where the cabin stood. He saw her stop suddenly. She stood listening a moment; came flying back.

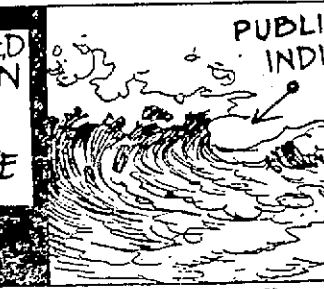

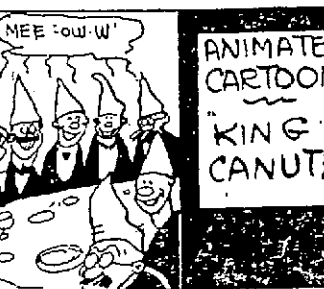

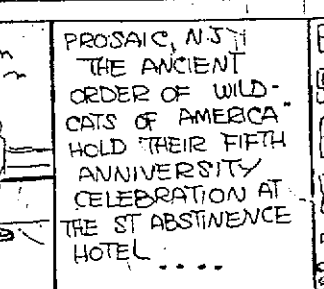

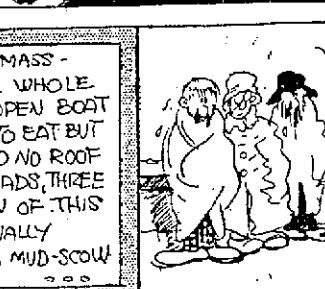

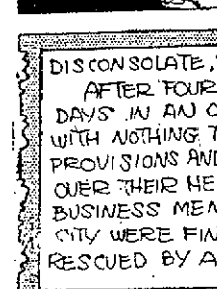

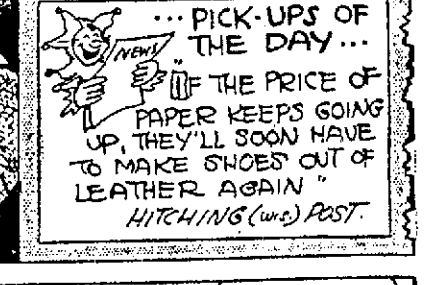

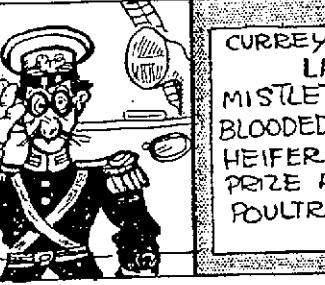

"The question on his face she answered by closing the door and motioning him into the main room and to the window by the sewing table. A small boy came whistling up the path.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

Incorporated under the name of the Washington Theater Company, three women will give to Washington what it never has had, a fine modern playhouse devoted to the spoken drama. They are Miss Kathleen S. Brown, the line owner and manager of the Parish Players of Chicago, who is president of the company; Mrs. Glenna Smith Tinnin, of Washington, vice-president and treasurer; and Mrs. Mary H. Kinkaid, a newspaper woman and play broker, secretary.

The site has been selected and plans have been drawn for two theaters, one especially for children, and a concert hall under one roof. They are to represent the best in theater art and to be equipped with every modern device which contributes to the illusion of the world of make-believe.

Since all interests of the country focus in the national capital, Washington has been selected as the logical place in which to establish a center where the best in the American theater can be developed. The Washington Theater Company is to have its own producing organization, but also will be used for presenting plays from other sources. Pending the completion of the building the company will present plays through existing channels. The program already includes three children's plays and a musical review, "Such Things Are," which has been tried out for a year on tour and is to be New York from Washington. The incorporators have had wide professional experience, have the cooperation of the Actors' Equity Association and have business connections with other important professional organizations.

GIRLS CLING TO WAR JOBS

During the war Washington was so filled with women "war workers" that it could not begin to provide comfortable quarters for all of them. They lived four in a room, in many cases, or five or six in a two-room apartment. When the armistice was signed it was predicted that there would be an exodus from Washington that would cause rental agents to lower their prices.

But such was not the case. The "war workers" refused to leave and 20 months later the signing of the armistice there is no visible increase in the number of available places. Although the rolls of the government department lists show that thousands of the workers were separated from the government payrolls during the period, it remains a fact that there are nearly as many "war workers" there now as during the war.

"This is said to be due to the fact that the 'war workers' almost entirely girls between 18 and 25 years of age, once having had a taste of Washington, at good wages and easy hours, refused to think of going back home to ten hours a day, $15 a week and the eyes of the village chaperons. They have been living in Washington as they pleased.

Truly it is a grand life for the 'war worker' who has fixed her status as a permanent resident in Washington. She makes good money, spends it all, but lives it all. It will take several years of getting nowhere to convince her that $10 a week or $15 a week in the home town is more than she can run than $25 a week in Washington.
